1. Pre-determined crisis scenarios, based on hazard risk assessments, which identify the most likely scenarios for each operational site.

2. Pre-written, approved media messages that contain the most basic outline of information that might be needed and can be quickly modified with current and pertinent information during a Crisis Event.
3. 24/7 emergency notification system, to ensure clear and timely notification to the Superior Group's crisis management team.
4. Pre-determined and approved list of internal and external emergency responders and technical advisors, along with their contact information and a means for providing this information in an easily accessible format during a Crisis Event.
5. Roles and responsibilities for responding to a Crisis Event are defined, and training is provided to each person assigned responsibility so that each such person is prepared and competent in their role.
6. Crisis management drills and exercises are conducted with sufficient frequency to validate, and increase familiarity and confidence with, the plan.
